

What's been your experience of the NHS or the care system?

Host a Community Conversation on the future of health and care

Engage Britain is a new charity that brings people together to tackle our country's biggest challenges.

People across Britain should have more say on the important decisions that affect them. Like what happens to our NHS or how people can get the care they need when they need it.

Because no one knows better what it's like to live in Britain today than you do.

Too many of us feel that we're not involved in these conversations. But Engage Britain wants to change that.

It starts with a simple idea: people talking. Bringing together different views and experiences to find out what we all feel is working right now and what isn't.

By sharing these ideas, together we can develop new ways to tackle challenges in health and care.

That's why Engage Britain is here - so you are heard.

Host a conversation about health and care in your community

Engage Britain is looking for people across England, Scotland and Wales to host Community Conversations between January and May 2021.

We have partnered with Just Ideas and WSA Community Consultants to recruit and support a diverse group of hosts from across the country.

What you get as a conversation host:

- Free training in how to organise and run a conversation in person or online
- Free, optional, accredited training in how to engage people and communities
- An involvement fee to support your role running the conversation
- The opportunity to become part of a network of people who want to change health and care for the better.

To find out more about leading a conversation, please email Graeme Fancourt for more info, and then return your expression of interest to him by 28th Feb. graeme@just-ideas.co.uk

Share your full name and the region where you live.
